

County Officers Insist City Is Not Cut Short

Comparative Figures Compiled by C of C City for Support

Figures comparing Fayette County's tax receipts with those of other counties have been received by the auditor's office here. Ulrich T. Acton, county auditor, revealed this comparison, following a meeting at which the county commissioners, the budget commission and the Chamber of Commerce secretary discussed a summary of county fiscal operations prepared by the Ohio Chamber of Commerce.

This meeting was similar to one held by the city councilmen and the Chamber of Commerce secretary at which a summary of the city's financial operations were discussed.

These summaries were prepared at Columbus to serve as an "educational program" for C of C directors here, said Fred Rost, C of C secretary, to inform them and help them in their relations with city council and the county officials.

The summaries showed that both the city and county affairs were being handled economically.

The report of city operations said "it appears that in the years 1946 and 1947, the county took more than its just share of inside millage, thus penalizing the other subdivisions." During the meeting of the county officials, it was stated that this was misleading and incomplete. The comparison figures show that the county kept for itself a smaller amount of revenue than any other county of similar characteristics.

The comparison shows that the Fayette County Budget Commission has retained only 8.55 percent of the money received from the state for itself and distributed 91.45 percent of townships and municipalities, of which Washington C. H. receives 48.55 percent, which is the group pointed out, one of the most liberal distributions of any county in the state. A spokesman for the group contended this "refutes the opinion frequently heard that the county is not giving the city all it has coming to it."

The group pointed out that this is further emphasized by the fact that most of the other counties compared, kept approximately 50 percent for the county's share. The county and city officials were complimented by the reports for their efficient handling of finances and the most harmonious relations that exist between these county and municipal government operations.

In Acton's remarks on the comparison, he said that if Fayette County had received $6,200 more from the sales tax allocation, called the local government fund, the county rate would have been reduced to 2.46 mills. Under these conditions, said Acton, the county would have received less money than any other county in the 12 compared.

The comparison table is:

Mr. and Mrs. Rubert Lowe, Delaware Street, are announcing the birth of a seven and one half pound son, at their home Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Stemple, nee Virginia White, 1238 North Yellow Springs Street, Springfield, are announcing the birth of a son, Stephen Alan, in Springfield City Hospital, Tuesday.

Mr. Virgil A. Davis of the Good Hope Road, who has been a patient in Grant Hospital, Columbus, since July 1, was brought to his home Saturday, where he is showing slight improvement. He is suffering from ulcers of the stomach.

Mrs. Ida Johnson 732 South North Street, was removed from her home Tuesday afternoon and taken to Grant Hospital, Columbus, in the Hook and Son ambulance, following a cerebral hemorrhage.

Mrs. Thomas Pinkerton, 715 Columbus Avenue, was taken in the Hook and Son invalid coach to the offices of Drs. Brown and Nance in Cincinnati Tuesday morning, and later to Jewish Hospital there, where she underwent an eye operation for the removal of a cataract Wednesday morning.

Miss Carol Armstrong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Armstrong, who is a student at Stephens College, Columbia, Mo., has just been presented with her commercial pilot's license at the summer flight camp school. She received her private license at the college last year.

Lanny Wilson, two year old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Wilson, 919 Forest Street, who drank the fluid from a novelty perfume lamp at his home Tuesday evening was treated at the offices of Dr. James Rose, and later taken to Children's Hospital, Columbus, where he underwent observation and was returned to his home. The trips were made in the Klever ambulance.

Belated Wheat Harvest Is Now Well Under Way

Wheat is Unusually Poor Quality But Yields Good

The belated wheat harvest in Fayette County is now hitting its stride, and if good weather prevails, huge amounts of grain will be handled by the grain elevators in this community during the next few days.

For the most part wheat is testing No. 3 and 4, with a dockage running from 3 to 12 cents per bushel, and the price being paid for No. 2 is around $2.25 per bushel.

Moisture has been running up to 17 percent, but late Tuesday and again Wednesday there was a pronounced drop in the moisture content as the drying sun placed the grain in good condition for combining.

Most of the wheat is running all the way from 52 to 58 pounds, normal being 58 pounds per bushel, and normal moisture content being 14 percent.

Much wheat was taken by local elevators Tuesday, and the volume was increasing rapidly Wednesday as the clear skies and drying breezes continued.

Reasons for the bad condition of most of the wheat are scab, "tombstone grains," sprouted grains, and blight. The "tombstone grains" are so called by reason of the fact that the grains failed to mature, probably due to excessive rainfall.

Good yields have been reported by a number of farmers who have finished their combining. Virgil Perrill had 15 acres on the Coons' land near Milledgeville, that averaged 32 bushels to the acre. Bruce King, of the Good Hope Road, reported a yield of 28 bushels to the acre on nine acres, and others have reported yields running well up in the 20's. Some yields are under 20 bushels.

First shocked wheat is being threshed, and damage so far has not been as extensive as at first appeared, although some grains have sprouted.

Harvest is three weeks behind the usual date.

It will take two more weeks before the harvesting is completed. On July 22 the three Washington C. H. elevators received a total of approximately 25,000 bushels of wheat. This was said to be nearly a normal day's intake for the harvesting season.

Playgrounds Will Be Closed Thursday

So that the children who attend the playgrounds may attend the Fair with their parents, Fred Pierson, city recreation director, announced that the playgrounds will be closed all day Thursday and will reopen Friday morning.

This will also give the supervisors a chance to attend the Fair. The Court House offices will also be closed Thursday and Friday afternoons.

Boy Badly Burned By Kerosene Blast

Third degree burns on the chest, back, face and arms were suffered by Ralph Burgess on Tuesday evening, as a result of an accident at his home.

Ralph, the 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burgess, tenants of a farm on the Chillicothe Road owned by L. M. Hayes, was attempting to light a kerosene stove and accidentally dropped a match into the fuel can. The resulting explosion burned the boy severely about the body, arms and face.

Following emergency treatment given at the office of Dr. E. H. McDonald, Ralph was taken to Children's Hospital, Columbus, by Hayes. His condition was described as critical, though he was said to be "resting easy" as a result of pain-relieving agents which physicians had administered. The full extent of the boy's injury will not be known until the bandages are removed.

At the time of the accident, the boy's parents were in West Virginia, where they had been called by the death of Burgess' father. They were notified and have returned to their home here.

Legion UN Plan

At present, Britain, Russia, France, China and this country are permanent members of the 11-member council with each exercising veto power over any matter of "substance" before that body.

Under the legion plan, any one of the big five still would be able to block admission of new U. N. members or the creation of special investigating commissions, unless some question of aggression were involved.

In calling for changes to give the council "adequate powers," the proposal urged these three points: A. Creation of an atomic development authority responsible to the council for rigid control of atomic weapons and all other means of mass destruction.

B. Power for the council to limit the total annual output of heavy armament all over the world.

C. Maintenance of a staff of inspectors with full rights and access to arms production, information on troop concentrations, industrial resources and activities.

acrobatics, juggling, and what have you.

Tuesday night the gate showed 2470 admissions paid, and 2200 grandstand admissions.

Total grandstand receipts were $912.50 Tuesday night, compared with $447.50 in 1946. Total gate Tuesday night was $1211 compared with $887 for the opening night last year.

The whole Fair picture is one of great improvement over previous years. The approach to the grounds, from the new brick ticket booth with the entrance and exit drives, to the Merchants' Pavilion, creates an impression of clean-cut efficient layout not only for the present but for future years. Where in the past a rather messy wire fence with a makeshift gate guarded restricted areas from the intrusion of cars and

In The Nation Today

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON, July 23—(P)—Here's an ABC on the new national defense set-up just okayed by Congress:

(It's supposed to "unify" the armed forces. It isn't law yet. But it's expected to be.)

Secretary of national defense—he's boss of the Army, Navy, and Air Force, but only up to a point. He'll be a civilian, appointed by the President. The job is brand new.

As now, the Army and Navy stay separate departments, each under its own secretary. (The Navy keeps its own air force.)

For the first time the Army Air Force, now part of the Army, becomes a separate department. It, too, will have its own secretary.

Each of the three secretaries—Army, Navy, Air Force—will run his own department but all will be under the secretary of national defense.

His job will be to tell them how to work better together. If they dislike his orders, they can go over his head and appeal to the President.

The defense secretary will be a member of the President's cabinet. The President can let the other three secretaries sit in his cabinet, if he wishes.

National security resources board—to make continuous surveys of America's resources, such as manpower, oil, iron, electric power, coal, food.

The board will be all-civilian, with the chairman appointed by the President.

The other members will be heads or representatives of government departments, like Navy Interior, or Army.

National security (or defense) council—to help the President handle our foreign relations, resources, and armed forces. In short: to help advise him on our ability to defend ourselves and wage war if necessary.

The council will be all-civilian. The President may sit in. The members are: Secretaries of State, National Defense, Army, Navy, Air Force, and the chairman of the National Resources Board.

Central Intelligence Agency—to gather information on the military strength of other nations and what they're up to.

This information is to be gathered from all sources everywhere, abroad and here. The director is to be appointed by the President.

War Council—to advise the Secretary of National Defense on problems of the armed forces to get better team-work out of them.

The chairman will be the Secretary of National Defense. Other members: Secretaries of the Army, Navy, Air Force and chiefs of staff of the three services.

Research and Development Board—to suggest the best ways of getting scientific research done for the armed forces with the least lost motion.

The President will appoint a civilian chairman. Other members: two representatives each

Boyle Has Unusual Dream World For Waking Hours

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK.—(P)—Most of the time I am awake I live in my private dream world.

I don't know what your dream world is like, but mine is one place where no tenderfoot is welcome.

It is really a tough joint, where from the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Munitions Board—To keep constant check on this country's industrial capacity for waging war. Example: How many plants can make tanks.

The President will appoint a civilian chairman. Other members: Undersecretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Joint Chiefs of Staff—To plan military operations, help combine the education and training of men in the three services, and act as military advisers to the President.

Members: Chief of Staff of the Army (Gen. Eisenhower is Army Chief of Staff now), Chief of Naval Operations (now Adm. Chester W. Nimitz), Chief of Staff of the Air Force.

In voting for this national defense plan, House and Senate passed separate bills which were the same except on these points:

The House wanted the director of central intelligence to be a civilian, not a military man, and it wanted the Marine Corps to be assured it would remain intact. The Senate said the director could be either a civilian or military man, and it left out the Marine provision.

House and Senate must iron out this difference before they send a single, agreed upon bill to the President to be signed into law.

They're expected to do that this week but—until they do, this plan is not law. If they don't agree, the whole plan is dead this year.

ing how I could hang that kindly old lady by the neck without being caught. I never got around to doing it, but that incident sent me off into a dream world in which my enemies ever since have suffered terrible phantom drubbings. Wouldn't want to give the idea that my dream world is just an arena of revenge. It is much more than that. It is the place where I turn stupendous million-dollar business deals, toss thousands away to charity, and am a modern Robin Hood of Wall Street with a Midas touch.

But the main thing is that in my dream world I am a really tough cookie. Anybody who pushes me around disappears in a geyser of surprised gore. The only trouble is they don't realize it.

After some five years of married life my good wife, Frances, began to worry about the way I kept skipping off into my dream world whenever the world about me bored me. She said I should see a psychiatrist—or at least go to a Turkish bath.

"I would rather admit a duck billed platyous to my dream world than a psychiatrist," I said.

But once at a cocktail party I edged up to a psychiatrist and asked:

"Have you ever considered robbing the Queen Elizabeth in mid-ocean, sinking it with all its passengers and escaping on a speedboat?"

He measured me carefully with his eye, then whispered: "The first thing is to knock out the radio so she can't give an alarm."

Now after 10 years Frances doesn't mind so much when I retreat into my dream world. Her tolerance began after she asked me curiously:

"Are there any girls in your dream world?"

"No," I told her, "its no place for women."

"Well, you poor thing, go ahead and enjoy it."

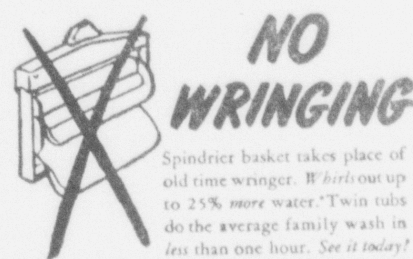

So that's where I live mostly.

Intelligence Tests

We have heard a lot of people argue both for and against the so-called intelligence tests which frequently are put up to people supposedly for the purpose of determining whether they are fitted for certain positions.

Several psychologists recently have questioned the worth of intelligence quotient, or IQ, tests. Some of them have even been so courageous as to say that they thought these tests may do more harm than good.

This may surprise the majority of us who, innocent of psychological learning, have accepted the intelligence quotient as gospel. A high IQ has been the badge of mental superiority for 30 years and more. A low IQ has frequently brought despair to the parents of children who, as the result of these tests, have been given statistical dunce caps.

To be sure, a good many youngsters with an IQ of genius rating didn't turn out to be geniuses. But the faith of most laymen in the IQ wasn't shaken. Now along come some learned men to say, as others have been saying more quietly right along, that the tests don't tell the whole story, that they're arbitrary, inaccurate, misleading and so on.

For those who are dismayed by these charges, an article by Hannah Lees in a recent issue of Collier's magazine is recommended reading. It is called "Doing What Comes Naturally," and tells the story of Johnson O'Connor's aptitude tests which, begun at General Electric 25 years ago, have blossomed into Human Engineering Laboratories in 10 of the country's major cities.

The human engineers consider that aptitudes are "as inherent as blue eyes and more so than curly hair, and have little relation to intelligence and even less to environment or childhood conditioning." The scientific testing of aptitudes apparently is not yet developed fully, nor do the human engineers claim that possession or lack of certain aptitudes guarantee success or failure. But their quarter-century work demonstrates that they have found the knack of putting the square pegs in square holes.

Psychiatry today is a vogue as well as a science. There are relatively few professional psychiatrists, but many people tend to go in for "home remedy" psychoanalysis. They read books on the subject, grope blindly and suffer needlessly.

Some parents may torture themselves wrongly in trying to connect a child's backwardness in school with an emotional injury arising from their own shortcomings. They may fret about an apparent misfit whose talents might be only undeveloped, not absent. Few adults, in looking at their children or themselves, seem to suspect that an innate skill might be a separate and largely unrelated part of their individuality.

Throughout modern civilization there have been countless people who were unhappy and unsuccessful because, without knowing it, they had jobs they didn't like

Today's Horoscope
A birthday anniversary today means that you are energetic, vivacious, and rather talkative. You are very fond of gaiety and social life and like to have an active part in anything you undertake. You are not demonstrative in your love and require affection and understanding from your mate. Today's influences are adverse. Don't commit yourself. Lack of harmony or sociability is indicated. Your fortunes and happiness in your next year will grow apace. Utilize the same fully. Court, marry and make new friends. Intellectual and social pursuits are well signified, also new business adventures. Today's child will exhibit great charm of manner and be a general favorite—probably a genius in one of the arts. A long, happy, successful life is prognosticated.

and weren't fitted for. Certainly that is true today. And it seems reasonable that many psychological disturbances have their origin in this fact, rather than in some deep-seated emotional block.

We don't mean to discount the value of psychiatry, or to present aptitude tests as the be-all and end-all. But surely if such tests, given generally, could steer a few million people toward work that they would like best and do best, there would be more individual happiness and more general efficiency in a country and a world that could use plenty of both.

Farley's Chances

James A. Farley's recently published reminiscences show that he seriously hoped to head the Democratic presidential ticket in 1940. It is hard to see why. In all American history no one known only as a political manager has ever won a major party nomination. The nearest example was Martin Van Buren, who had closely associated with Tammany Hall and with party wire-pulling in New York. But Van Buren was more than a politician. He had been senator, governor, secretary of state and minister to England, and had filled all these posts with credit. By contrast, Farley's only national office was the postmaster-generalship, a traditional reward for campaign managers.

Farley's hopes for the nomination were probably based on his wide acquaintance with Democratic politicians all over the United States. To expect his election he must have interpreted the sweeping Democratic victory in 1936 as meaning that any nominee of the party could win in 1940. This might not have been true.

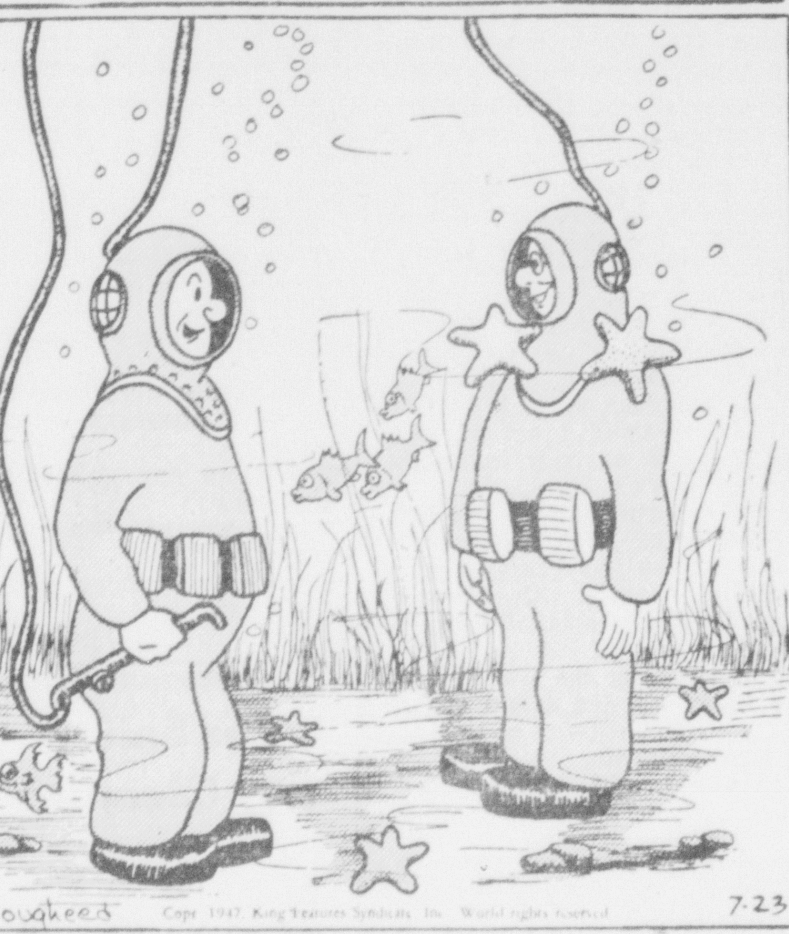

New Labs Needed

Speaking at the NEA convention in Cincinnati, Morris Meister, president of the science teachers' organization, said, "We are trying to teach about the atomic age in laboratories that were equipped in 1915 and 1920."

Compared with that of Britain and Russia, our science teaching is far behind the times, this critic stated. Lack of competent teachers is another factor which holds back progress, many having left teaching for industry or for military service.

Many of the world's great scientists have gotten their initial impulse in a high-school laboratory. Youthful enthusiasm must be made use of and properly guided if we are to keep up with progress along scientific lines.

Condition Which May Affect Infants

By HERMAN N. RUNDEN, M.D.
PERSISTENT attacks of vomiting in the new-born baby mean that the doctor should be consulted at once because they may indicate the condition known as congenital pyloric stenosis.

Pyloric stenosis occurs because of a thickening of the circular muscle, known as the pyloric valve, located between the stomach and the first part of the intestine. Ordinarily, this valve closes to keep food in the stomach until it is ready to pass into the small intestine, but in pyloric stenosis, the valve remains closed, blocking the opening so that food does not get through.

Present at Birth
This disorder may be present at birth, particularly in boy babies, though usually it comes on at six weeks of age, causing vomiting, followed by loss in weight and, eventually, starvation.

Apparently, pyloric stenosis varies greatly in its severity, that is, the closure may be more or less complete. Thus the type of treatment varies with the severity of the condition.

When pyloric stenosis is present in the new-born baby, it is important to recognize it early so that it can be treated at once before the child's condition becomes worse through lack of nourishment.

Treated Medically
Mild cases, it appears, may be treated medically. This medical treatment, according to Dr. Wilfred J. Pearson of England, consists in washing out the stomach with a warm salt solution, regulating the feedings, and making sure that loss of fluids from the body, or dehydration, is corrected. In addition, atropine, a preparation which relaxes muscle spasm, may be employed, together with phenobarbital which is a sedative or quieting drug but is used in these conditions because it relaxes the stomach and intestine.

Of course, these preparations must be carefully administered under the direction of a physician, so that the correct dose is used. As a general rule, the atropine is given a half hour before each feeding. If there is any evidence of loss of fluids from the body, salt solution may be given either by injection into a vein or under the skin.

As a general rule, breast milk is the best food for these babies. In some cases, however, it may be necessary to give thickened cereal feedings. The amount of food given at each feeding should be small, and the feedings given at more frequent intervals than usual, that is, every three hours.

In severe cases of pyloric stenosis, operation is required. If the operation is done early, and the baby is put in the best possible condition before operation, the operation is usually quite successful. Any dehydration present must be corrected before the operation is performed. Blood transfusion, that is the injection of whole blood into a vein, is often helpful.

After the operation, small quantities of food are given at each feeding, and then the amount gradually increased.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

THEY HAD the cold ducks for supper. After the ducks there was a caramel custard which, Lady Angkatell said, showed just the right feeling on the part of Mrs. Medway.

Cooking, she said, really gave great scope to delicacy of feeling. "We are only, as she knows, moderately fond of caramel custard. There would be something very gross, just after the death of a friend, in eating one's favorite so easy-slippery, if you know what I mean—and then one leaves a little on one's plate."

She sighed and said that she hoped they had done right in letting Gerda go back to London.

"But quite correct of Henry to go with her."

For Sir Henry had insisted on driving Gerda to Harley Street.

"She will come back here for the inquest, of course," went on Lady Angkatell, meditatively eating caramel custard.

Well, she wanted to break it to the children—they might see it in the papers and with only a French-woman in the house—one knows how excitable—a crise de nerfs, possibly. But Henry will deal with her, and I really think Gerda will be quite all right. She will probably send for some relations—sisters perhaps. Gerda is the sort of person who is sure to have sisters—three or four, I should think, probably living at Tunbridge Wells."

"What extraordinary things you do say, Lucy," said Midge.

"Well, darling, Torquay if you prefer it—no, not Torquay. They would be at least sixty-five if they were living at Torquay—Eastbourne, perhaps, or St. Leonard's."

Lady Angkatell looked at the last spoonful of caramel custard, seemed to condole with it, and laid it down very gently uneaten.

David, who liked only savories, looked down gloomily at his empty plate.

Lady Angkatell got up.

"I think we shall all want to go to bed early tonight," she said.

"So much has happened, hasn't it? One has no idea, from reading about these things in the paper, how tiring they are. I feel, you know, as though I had walked about fifteen miles . . . instead of having done nothing but sit about—that is tiring, because one does not like to read a book or a newspaper, it looks so heartless. Though I think perhaps the leading article in the Observer would have been all right—but not the News of the World. Don't you agree with me, David? I like to know what the young people think; it keeps one from losing touch."

David said in a gruff voice that he never read the News of the World.

"I always do," said Lady Angkatell. "We pretend we get it for the servants, but Gudgeon is very understanding and never takes it out until after tea. It is a most interesting paper, all about women who put their heads in gas ovens—an incredible number of them."

"What will they do in the houses of the future which are all electric?" asked Edward Angkatell with a faint smile.

"I suppose they will just have to decide to make the best of things—so much more sensible."

"I disagree with you, sir," said David, "about the houses of the future being all electric. There can be communal heating laid on from a central supply. Every working-class house should be completely labor saving."

Edward Angkatell said hastily that he was afraid that was a subject he was not very well up in. David's lip curled with scorn.

Gudgeon brought in coffee on a tray, moving a little slower than usual, to convey a sense of mourning.

"Oh, Gudgeon," said Lady Angkatell, "about those eggs. I meant to write the date in pencil on the usual. Will you ask Mrs. Medway to see to it?"

"I think you will find, m'lady, that everything has been attended to quite satisfactorily." He cleared his throat. "I have seen to things myself."

"Oh, thank you, Gudgeon."

As Gudgeon went out she murmured, "Really, Gudgeon is wonderful. The servants are all being marvelous. And one does so sympathize with them having the police here—it must be dreadful for them. By the way, are there any left?"

"Police, do you mean?" asked Midge.

"Yes. Don't they usually leave one standing in the hall? Or perhaps he's watching the front door from the shrubbery outside."

"Why should he watch the front door?"

"I don't know, I'm sure. They do in books. And then somebody else is murdered in the night."

"Oh, Lucy, don't," said Midge. Lady Angkatell looked at her curiously.

"Darling, I am so sorry. Stupid of me. And, of course, nobody else could be murdered. Gerda's gone home—I mean, oh, Henrietta dear, I am sorry. I didn't mean to say that."

But Henrietta did not answer. She was standing by the round table staring down at the bridge score she had kept last night.

She said, rousing herself, "Sorry, Lucy, what did you say?"

"I wondered if there were any police left over?"

"Like remnants in a sale? I don't think so. They've all gone back to the police station, to write out what we said in proper police language."

"What are you looking at, Henrietta?"

"Nothing."

Henrietta moved across to the mantelpiece.

"What do you think Veronica Cray is doing tonight?" she asked.

A look of dismay crossed Lady Angkatell's face.

"My dear! You don't think she might come over here again? She must have heard by now."

"Yes," said Henrietta thoughtfully. "I suppose she's heard . . ."

"Which reminds me," said Lady Angkatell. "I really must telephone to the Careys. We can't have them coming to lunch tomorrow just as though nothing had happened."

David, hating his relations, murmured that he wanted to look up something in the Encyclopedia Britannica. The library, he thought, would be a peaceful place.

Henrietta went to the French windows, opened them, and passed through. After a moment's hesitation Edward followed her.

He found her standing outside looking up at the sky. She said:

"Not so warm as last night, is it?"

In his pleasant voice, Edward said, "No, distinctly chilly."

She was standing looking up at the house. Her eyes were running along the windows. Then she turned and looked toward the woods. He had no clew to what was in her mind.

He made a movement toward the open window.

"Better come in. It's cold."

She shook her head.

"I'm going for a stroll. To the swimming pool."

"Oh, my dear—!" He took a quick step toward her. "I'll come with you."

"No, thank you, Edward." Her voice cut sharply through the chill of the air. "I want to be alone with my dear."

"Henrietta! My dear—I haven't said anything. But you do know how—how sorry I am."

"Sorry? That John Christow is dead?"

There was still the brittle sharpness in her tone.

"I meant—sorry for you, Henrietta. I know it must have been a—great shock."

"Shock? Oh, but I'm very tough, Edward! I can stand shocks. Was it a shock to you? What did you feel when you saw him lying there? Glad, I suppose. . . . You didn't like John Christow."

Edward murmured, "He and I hadn't much in common."

"How nicely you put things! In such a restrained way. But, as a matter of fact, you did have one thing in common. Me! You were both fond of me, weren't you? Only that didn't make a bond between you—quite the opposite."

The moon came fitfully through a cloud and he was startled as he suddenly saw her face looking at him. Unconsciously he always saw Henrietta as a projection of the Henrietta he had known at Ainswick. To him she was always a laughing girl, with dancing eyes full of eager expectation. The woman he saw now seemed to him a stranger, with eyes that were brilliant but cold and which seemed to look at him inimically.

'Buttoned Lip' Badge of Town Atom Built

By JAMES HUTCHESON

RICHLAND, Wash. —(P)—As this atom-born community approaches the second anniversary of two history-making explosions which blew away the "secret" of its existence, it is preparing for its first postwar expansion project with a tight-lipped security policy still its guiding code.

The announcement this month of the expansion program said all new construction and plant workers would undergo the usual close scrutiny for security purposes.

A sign posted prominently in the town's recreation hall sounds the "atom city" keynote:

"Espionage is always a threat; don't talk about your work off the job."

(Officials said there has been no change in security restrictions since the congressional flurry over removal and recovery of files from the Los Alamos, N. M., atomic project, and that there have been no breaches of security here.)

Since the atomic energy commission took over administration of the atom program, every one of the 5,600 employees in the General Electric-administered Hanford Engineering Works is being re-investigated. All new employees have to face a thorough investigation as to their loyalty and past activities.

A spokesman for General Electric, which took over the operation of the vast Hanford project from Dupont last year, said the re-investigation of all employees was launched under an atomic energy commission order of last April 16.

In addition to the A.E.C. check-up, every employee must meet General Electric personnel standards on qualifications for atomic project work and personal adaptability to the atomic community.

Project officials are proud of the Hanford works safety record, but even in that sphere there is an element of "restricted information."

In the making of plutonium, the radioactive element which is a key to the release of atomic energy, not a single person ever has been listed as a victim of the highly dangerous radioactivity. A series of vast industrial plants, potentially the most dangerous in the world, have compiled the state's best industrial safety record.

Compared with the national industrial average of 13.6 casualties per million man hours of labor, Safety Director V. R. Holmquist figures a 1945 average in the Hanford works of .077 and a 1946 rating of .034.

"In 1946 we went 235 days without an injury," Holmquist said. "Then the record was spoiled because a workman let a blister get infected after pinching his finger with a screw driver. He lost a day."

The only fatality ever charged against the operation of the atomic project was a man's death when he fell from a truck in a collision.

The curtain of secrecy drops again on the question of how such a safety record can be established where such deadly stuff is being manufactured in seven sprawling plants, each eight miles apart over a 630-square mile area.

Most workmen don't get near the dangerous product, and Geiger counters keep a constant check on radioactivity in work areas. An information official explains that protective clothing is worn by persons in work which might lead them to dangerous exposure, and built-in precautionary devices assure that a workman with more curiosity than good sense can't go wandering into trouble.

"But what kind of protective equipment is used is in the restricted category," said a G. E. public relations official.

Even overnight visitors aren't taken for granted. At the transient quarters (the closest thing to a hotel in the town of 16,000), the clerk asks politely to "please sign who you are here to see at the bottom."

Actually, project employees say an espionage agent could pump most of them for all they know and still wouldn't learn much about producing plutonium. They just don't know.

The production areas are a closed preserve. The potentially hazardous plants are separated in the desolate country along the Columbia river, which supplies the large amount of electricity needed and the large flow of water needed for cooling.

The nearest production plant is 25 miles from this residential and headquarters center; the farthest 40. Employees say an individual worker doesn't get much of an idea of what is going on.

One young doctor of the project hospital staff said, "I remember the day the bomb was announced and the Hanford project was identified with it. I was on a vacation trip to Oregon. When I asked the agent for a ticket to Richland, he said he never had heard of such a place and didn't have any ticket to it.

I pointed to the newspaper near him, with the atom bomb headline, and told him that was it. He wanted me to come into his office and tell him all about it.

"I didn't know much more about it than he did, and like the workers in the plant, hadn't known what the Hanford project was working on until I read it in the paper."

It was no wonder that the ticket agent hadn't heard of Richland, which had been a little crossroads settlement of 250. A project public relations officer, M. R. Cydell, had spent virtually his full time in making sure that no news was published or broadcast about the project.

A boom construction camp of 51,000 population blossomed where only a few hundred persons had eked out an isolated existence. There were more than 8,000 trailer homes alone. Thousands of buses were needed for transporting workers.

There were gigantic problems of obtaining such scarce supplies as sugar and milk for the boom town in the wastelands. Horace Andrews, now a Walla Walla businessman but who was then in the service section for the project, relates how it was necessary to get a direct order from President Roosevelt for the necessary sugar for a boom city that was almost unknown to rationing officials.

When construction was completed, the boom construction camp dissolved almost as swiftly as it had risen. Many of the munitions-wise workers who saw the heavy walls being built figured they didn't care about being around when production of the mystery product started.

A total of only about 6,000 was needed to operate the project. Richland was built as project headquarters and as the residential community. It is a government-owned, company-operated town, and the "buttoned lip" is still its badge.

A Letter from Washington

By Jane Eads

WASHINGTON — Wedding bells rang at Bolling Field the other afternoon, and three pairs of newlyweds ducked blithely through a shower of rice under an arch of crossed tombstones as they emerged from the little chapel.

The bridegrooms were members of the Army Air Forces Band—the assistant conductor, a tuba player and an oboe player. One was a member of the Jewish faith, one was a Catholic and the other a Protestant. The ceremonies were performed consecutively and the entire band turned out for the occasion.

This performance was a follow-up of Operation Melody, a series of performances by the band, which was flown to key cities throughout the midwest in six C-46 transports.

The band, which now includes 115 outstanding musicians, was organized by Maj. George S. Howard, a well known music educator and conductor of Reading, Pa.

was executive officer of music of the Army's Special Services Division in the war department. Gen. H. H. Arnold, then chief of the Army Air Forces, asked him to take over the band-building project and told him he wanted to have the best empty-ump band in the world.

The artists come from the Cincinnati Symphony, the Pryor Band, Woody Herman's orchestra and the Honolulu Symphony, to name but a few, and is noted for its versatility.

"It has amazed critics," says Conductor Howard, "by its ability to resolve into a marching band, a symphony orchestra, a concert band, five dance units, a radio studio orchestra, a glee club and a faculty to train new musicians for band units at Air Force stations throughout the world."

"In private life," Major Howard goes on, "you wouldn't ever be able to get musicians from such varied fields together. It's been a good thing all way around. Bach and Boogie-Woogie players now entertain a new respect for each other.

Since the war's close, Major Howard has been organizing a permanent band unit. Now he takes on only men who have enlisted for three years. The bandsmen are not fliers. They're doing a civilian job in uniform. The pay is comparable to salaries paid outside for musicians. The men all have top ratings as master sergeants, technical sergeants and staff sergeants.

Most of the men were in the Army during the war and re-enlisted to join the band. Almost all are college men, some with masters' degrees. Seventy percent are married. All of them like in Washington. Their average age is 25 to 26 years, and they're good-looking.

"They've got to be," says Maj. Howard. "They're the show unit of the Air Forces."

The band plays on a coast-to-coast radio hook-up every Thursday from 8 to 9 P. M. (EST) and Saturdays from 11:30 A. M. to noon (EST).

Motion Picture Is Featured At Rotary Meeting

Group of Columbus Musicians To Be Here Next Week

A remarkably fine motion picture in technicolor, "Men of Gloucester," featured the program of the Rotary Club luncheon at the Country Club Tuesday.

The picture was shown here through the courtesy of the Ford Motor Company, having been booked by Carroll Halliday, chairman of the July program committee.

The feature film was in no way an advertising picture but depicted the life of the famous Massachusetts fishing town and port, its people and its activities, with a touch of its past history.

President Webber French introduced the various guests present and also presented Chairman Earl Gidding of the Rotary magazine committee who told members of the club what his committee planned to do in the future and warned them that a quiz program on magazine contents, in which all Rotarians would be expected to participate, would be scheduled in the near future.

It was announced that the entertainment feature of next Tuesday's program will be the appearance here of a traveling group of musicians from Columbus known as Adolph Elset and Orchestra. A woman vocalist will accompany the orchestra and will be heard in two or more selections.

30,000 Now Seeking Homes In New York Housing Project

NEW YORK—Within a week after the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company announced that it would consider applications to live in mammoth new 8,759-apartment Stuyvesant Town development on Manhattan's lower East Side, more than 30,000 persons begged to become tenants.

The first of Stuyvesant Town's 45 apartment buildings will not be ready until the fall of 1947, and the rest a year later, but that did not deter candidates from all parts of the east. In seven days enough prospective tenants had been heard from to rent every one of the flats four times over—and requests are still pouring in.

Metropolitan officials say that every letter will be answered and the names of the senders catalogued. Later, home-seekers will be invited for an interview and allowed to file formal applications, well before the flats are finished. Veterans are being given preference.

Three Year Old Girl Killed Under Truck

COLUMBUS, July 23—(P)—Three-year-old Helen Greer died beneath the wheels of a truck last night as she ran to the road to greet her mother, Mrs. Cecil Greer, who was returning in the vehicle from a shopping trip. The accident occurred in front of their farm home about two miles southwest of Johnstown, near Route 60.

Junior D. A. R. Members Hold Election of Officers At Regular Meeting

Members of the Junior D. A. R. met at the home of Mrs. Gilbert Kidner on Tuesday for their regular monthly session. Mrs. Kidner was assisted in the hostess duties of the evening by Mrs. Robert Terhune.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. Harold Hyer, acting chairman, who presided over the short business session, during which election of officers was held, resulting in the following members being chosen for the coming year.

Mrs. John Gerstner was elected as chairman, Mrs. Ronald Cornwell vice chairman, Mrs.

Birthday Is Celebrated

The beautiful country home of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard T. Miller on the Prairie Road was the scene of a delightful affair on Sunday evening, when Mrs. Miller invited a large number of friends to compliment Mr. Miller on his birthday anniversary, and was arranged as a complete surprise.

The guests enjoyed a number of beautifully rendered piano selections presented by Miss Kathleen Kelley, and Mr. Ellsworth Vannorsdall, and found a drawing contest most entertaining with prizes in this presented to the oldest and the youngest persons present.

The lovely array of gifts showered upon the honor guest were acknowledged with sincere appreciation.

Mrs. Miller was assisted in the serving of a tempting refreshment course by Mrs. Wilmer McCoy, Miss Kelley, Miss Evelyn McCoy, and Mrs. Deane Draper.

Additional guests enjoying the pleasant occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Cleon Coe, sons, Billy and Dale, Mrs. Emma Ervin, Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Vannorsdall, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Seibert, Mrs. P. C. Mowery, Miss Dorothy Mowery, Mr. Russell Mowery, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kessler, Mrs. Artless Shepherd, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Garring, son, Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Blankenship, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Estel Slaughter, Mrs. Leola Allen and Mrs. William Allen, all of the Wesley Chapel community, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Slaughter, Mr. and Mrs. James Miller and Mr. Tom Miller of South Solon, Ronald, Donald and Charles Fisher and Nick White of Columbus, Mr. and Mrs. Charles McCoy, Miss Evelyn McCoy, Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer B. McCoy, daughter, Irene of London, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Hien, Miss Kathleen Kelley of Danville, Mr. and Mrs. C. Glenn McCoy, children, Janet and Jackie, Mrs. Ada McCoy, Miss Judy Brown, of Bloomingburg, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Kelley of this city, Mrs. Deane Draper, Mrs. Miller and children, Eddie and Linda.

Charles Gallaher, secretary, and Mrs. Robert Moorehouse, treasurer.

A box was packed by the group for overseas shipment to a French family recently adopted by the chapter as one of their monthly projects. Hostesses for meetings for the coming year were appointed and it was decided by the group to hold a picnic in combination with their August meeting with Mrs. Leonard Korn, Mrs. Harold Hyer and Mrs. Robert Moorehouse as hostesses.

Following the lengthy business meeting, a dainty refreshment course was served by the hostesses during the pleasant social hour.

Shower Given To Honor Recent Bride

A shower honoring Mrs. Raymond L. Allen, nee Ruby Bentley, a recent bride, was given by Mrs. Horace Mossman at her home in Jeffersonville. The rooms were cleverly decorated with a pastel color scheme using aqua, pink and yellow.

The beautifully wrapped gifts were attached to streamers and arranged on the dining room table and were presented to the honor guest, who was seated at a small table placed in the archway leading into the living room, she expressing appreciation for each.

Contests were arranged and conducted by Mrs. Charles Fent, which were thoroughly enjoyed. Prizes in these were awarded Mrs. Nathan Ervin, Mrs. Clarence Bennett and Mrs. Cecil Dugan.

A dainty refreshment course was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Fern Stoddard, Mrs. George Allen and Mrs. Fent. Invited guests were Mrs. Dean Sessler, Mrs. James Rea, Mrs. Enze Thompson, Mrs. Ada Gault, Mrs. Myrtle Williams, Mrs. Raymond Stuckey, Mrs. Ruby Lee Holden, Miss Donna Smith, Mrs. Virgil Bentley, Mrs. W. S. Bentley, Mrs. Thurman Bentley, Mrs. G. W. Mother Honors Third Birthday Of Her Son

Roger Lee Howsman was complimented on his third birthday on Monday, when his mother, Mrs. Max Howsman entertained a group of his young friends with a lovely party at the Howsman home near Bloomingburg, between the hours of two and five in the afternoon.

Games arranged for the amusement of the small guests were played during the afternoon and two contests were thoroughly enjoyed by the tiny tots.

Little Roger Lee opened his gifts with keen anticipation and responded to each in a cunning childish manner.

Colorful whirligigs were given as favors and the birthday cake with three lighted tapers, which were blown out by the small honor guest, was served at one long table with their favorite ice cream, each place marked with containers filled with small candles.

Mothers of the children attending were Mrs. Ancil Kirkpatrick Jr., Mrs. Dale Reisinger, Mrs. Clark Thompson and Mrs. Fred Allen, who assisted Mrs. Howsman in the hostess duties of the afternoon.

GOOD NEWS For Folks Who Suffer From ✓ STOMACH GAS
✓ SOUR FOOD TASTE
✓ ACID INDIGESTION

Do you feel bloated and miserable after every meal, taste sour, bitter food? If so, here is how you may get blessed relief from this nervous distress.

Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.

To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.

Avoid punishing yourself with over-doses of soda and other alkalis to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is SSS Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people SSS Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of SSS Tonic from your drug store today. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Recent Bride Is Honored

Mrs. Howard Graham, nee Helen Slavens, a recent bride, was complimented on Tuesday evening with a miscellaneous shower given by Miss Grace Humphrey at her beautiful home on the Devalon Road. The rooms were beautifully decorated with arrangements of lovely summer flowers throughout.

This group of close friends of the honor guest enjoyed a delightful period of informal visiting during the earlier part of the evening, following with the presenting of a number of handsome gifts arranged on the dining room table under an umbrella of pink, which formed a beautiful canopy, and as each gift was opened, Mrs. Graham responded in a gracious manner.

A tempting salad course was served the guests at small tables centered with miniature green vases, filled with small pink flowers cleverly carrying out a color scheme of pink and green, and the hostess was assisted in the serving by Mrs. Malcolm Parrett and Mrs. Robert Moyer.

Invited guests were Mrs. Malcolm Parrett, Mrs. Robert Olinger, Mrs. Robert Moyer, Mrs. Richard Witherspoon, Mrs. Rex Bloomer, Mrs. Felix Halliday, Mrs. Damon Deiber, Mrs. J. R. Humphrey, Mrs. Charles Skinner of Clarksburg, Mrs. Richard McVey of Dayton, and Mrs. Jack Musselman of Springfield.

Kensington Club Is Entertained On Tuesday

A nearly full attendance of the members of the Tuesday Kensington Club were indebted to Mrs. Edgar Snyder, when she extended the hospitalities of her home on Tuesday for an afternoon of informal visiting over their needlework.

The rooms were decorated with summer flowers and especially admired was a vase of zinnias and baby's breath, centering the large table in the dining room at which the hostess seated the group for the serving of a tempting dessert course and the smaller table decorated with a small vase of shasta daisies, ragged robins and baby's breath.

Mrs. O. D. Farquhar assisted in the serving.

Two small guests present were Janie Dabe of Sabina and Greg Geiger of York, Pennsylvania.

Parking Is Barred Near Fairgrounds

The state highway patrol and police call attention to the order for no parking on the Leesburg Road, Wilmington Road, and Fairview Avenue, next to the Fairgrounds.

Signs have been erected and the places will be patrolled, so that offenders will be picked up and cited for violating the law.

Last year a number of persons who insisted upon parking along the grounds were cited for the offense.

Prohibition of parking is a safety step, to prevent accidents on the above traffic lanes while the Fair is under way.

Corn Outlook In the Nation Is Improving

Forecast Now is For Crop Near Normal
Next Fall

WASHINGTON, July 23—(P)—Improvement in the corn crop outlook today raised government hopes of maintaining meat production next year near the present high levels.

The Agriculture Department officially forecast a crop of 2,770,930,000 bushels, based on July 15 conditions.

The crop got off to a very poor start due to cold, wet weather during the planting season, and the last previous forecast, as of July 1, was 2,612,809,000 bushels.

The increase in the forecast reflects more favorable growing weather during the first half of July. Officials said that continued good weather and a late frost, which would allow fully maturity, would boost prospects even more.

However, untimely cool weather hit the midwest Monday night and today and may hamper growth.

Officials stated that a corn crop of around 2,850,000,000 bushels would permit maintenance of livestock, meat, dairy and poultry production at present near record levels.

Present meat production is 153 pounds a year for each person in the United States. This compares with a pre-war average of 126.

The latest corn forecast compares with the government's goal of 3,000,000,000 bushels, with last year's record 3,287,000,000, and with a 10-year average of 2,639,000,000.

The Agriculture Department, in its special report, said this year's corn crop still is late, but has "caught up" somewhat in the last two weeks.

Since July 1, it added, the corn belt has experienced uniformly "good corn weather"—that is, adequate moisture generally, warm days, and fairly warm nights.

Reports indicate that fields are now fairly free of weeds. Over most of the midwestern corn belt high yields early season hybrids than usual to lessen the handicap of the late start.

Like-wise, farmers in the eastern part of the belt were said to have used more fertilizer in an effort to further overcome the handicap of the late crop start.

Something New and Different

Girls of the chorus of the Klein's Revue of 1947

A seven-act variety show—a sort of modernized old time vaudeville—was to bring something new and different in the way of entertainment at the Wednesday Night Fair.

Billed as The Rhythm Revue of 1947, it will feature Doc Weatherspoon (well-to-do Jerry T. Ricketts in private life) who brings back memories of the old time speller, the spell-binding salesman of the medicine show; John and Jorie, a couple of comedy acrobats; the Belmont Brothers, novelty jugglers; Miss Tiz Liz, in ridiculous getup for a song and dance act and the chorus of precision dancing girls that make up the backdrop for the Rhythm Revue.

Jack Klein, personally keeps the show moving as its master of ceremonies.

Immigrants, Tired Waiting, Crash Gates 'Down Under'

SYDNEY, July 23—(P)—Hundreds of enthusiastic immigrants, too keen on a new life in a new country to wait for government-sponsored schemes, have come to Australia and New Zealand under their own steam in the last few months.

More are arriving every week, principally from the United Kingdom, but also from British dominions, Europe, India, and the United States.

Faced with the prospect of having to wait 18 months or two years for a steamer passage on an official immigrant ship, the new arrivals are coming on aircraft, liners and freighters, or as crew members of vessels which they desert.

(Counsel H. R. C. Wilde for the ing in at the rate of 1200 a year and being awarded citizenship of the country at the price of a month in jail at the expense of the state.)

Many of the immigrants have traveled from Britain across the Atlantic to North America, and then across the Pacific by aircraft.

or ship. These immigrants include several whole families.

Comparatively few have experienced undue difficulty in finding accommodation in either Australia or New Zealand. A few, including some British brides of ex-servicemen, have decided to return to the United Kingdom. One or two have remained only two weeks before buying a ticket back to Britain.

Fair Grounds Are Being Well Policed

Almost 20 deputized men will patrol the Fairgrounds this year under the direction of Sheriff Orland Hays, the Fair secretary's office announced Tuesday.

These men, who were sworn in for Fair duty, will roam over the Fairgrounds during the hours of the Fair. There will be a parking detail of 10 men, under the direction of Chester Trout, parking master, who will direct traffic coming into the grounds to park.

It was pointed out that the patrolling of the grounds was excellent last year and was expected to be equally good this year.

As early as 1609, the Dutch were carrying on trade from Java.

Sports Roundup

Cliff Lewis of the Cleveland Browns threw only one touchdown pass all last season, but earned him a spot on the American conference honor and a picture in a prominent place in the league's office. That pass was completed to Mac Speedie, the first touchdown ever made in the new pro football circuit.

THE BANK ROBBER

OUR ONLY CLUE IS THAT THE WOUNDED CASHIER OF THE BANK HEARD ONE OF THE ROBBERS SAY, "LET'S GO, SILKY!"

"SILKY"? THERE ARE A MILLION "SILKYS" —

REMEMBER THE NAMES OF THE TWO BANK ROBBERS WHO BROKE OUT OF JAIL AFTER KILLING A GUARD?

YOU MEAN BEAR CLAWS BURTON AND SILKY SAM HAWKS?

EXACTLY — THEY WERE THE SAME SIZE AS THE TWO MASKED BANK ROBBERS

WON'T THE GANG LAUGH WHEN THEY HEAR ABOUT THE SHERIFF HIRING BEAR CLAWS BURTON TO PAINT HIS LOVELY JAIL?

NIX ON SILKY! REMEMBER NAME IS PETE THE PAINTER —

Leading Sluggers Both Are Injured

NEW YORK, July 23—(AP)—One of those baseball oddities occurred yesterday when Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox and Johnny Mize of the New York Giants, the respective home run leaders of the American and National Leagues, both were struck by pitched balls and were so badly bruised that there was some question whether they will play in their teams' next games.

Williams suffered a bad bruise on his right wrist when struck by a pitch by Ed Lopat in the ninth inning of the Red Sox-Chicago White Sox game, and Mize was hit over the right ear by Harry Brecheen as he led off the batting order in the fourth inning of last night's game with the St. Louis Cardinals. Dr. Robert Hyland said Mize had a slight concussion.

CHICAGO, July 23—(AP)—The Chicago Cubs are trying an experiment in Wrigley Field in an effort to silence the players who have complained their hitting was hampered because of the bleacher background of white shirts.

A transparent plastic barrier, blue in color and about 12 feet square, was unveiled yesterday as the Cubs returned home a 22-game home stand. The Cubs, however, got only four-hits in the first game and five in the second.

There were no complaints from the bleacher fans whose vision was not hindered by the barrier. It will be increased in length and height if the players approve the innovation.

Stadium Enlarged

ALLIANCE, July 23—(AP)—Purchase of 900 bleacher seats to increase the capacity of the Mount Union College stadium for Alliance High School football games to 6,500 was authorized today by the board of education.

RELL G. ALLEN,

Daily Vacation Bible School Is Ended Here

Program Is Presented By Nearly 100 Students

A very successful daily vacation Bible school closed at the First Christian Church on July 20th, with a program at 7:30 P. M. in the church auditorium. The building was filled with an audience that was greatly pleased by the program rendered by the pupils of the school, numbering nearly 100, out of a total of about 120 registrations.

The program consisted of Scripture reading, prayers, choruses and songs by the beginners, primary, junior and intermediate groups into which the school was divided. These groups also responded to memory tests and examinations into the Scriptural knowledge they had obtained in the school, which lasted two weeks.

A display of various articles of handicraft, made by the pupils, was shown and admired by the audience after the close of the service. These articles included note books, book ends, flower vases, felt slippers, maps, blackboards and other articles.

Dr. C. B. Tigner, minister of the First Christian Church, served as superintendent of the school and Miss Jean Spencer was chairman of the school committee.

Other members of the committee were: Mrs. Hazel McNorton and Dr. Tigner. The faculty consisted, besides the above named, of the following: Jean Miller, La Rue Howard, Mary Su Belles, Helen Stookey, Blanche Merritt, Lizzie Tigner, Coyt Stookey, Ronald Merritt, Shirley Tigner, Mrs. Mac Dews and Wilma Weatherly.

One feature of the program Sunday night was the love gift presented to the church by the children, which consisted of an offering in pennies and nickels, of $9.04, contributed by them for mission work, which will be sent to Samuel K. Saunders, to help purchase medical supplies for use in Japan, for which place he will leave as a missionary shortly.

Campfire Camp Is Open Despite Cold

Even though the weather is more like winter than summer the Campfire Girls are braving a drop in temperature for another weekly session at Camp Wohelo near Rock Mills.

Most of the girls this week are from the Odako group, of which Mrs. Frank Brown is the guardian. On Friday, a council fire will be held at the camp in honor of the girls' parents and friends and for the awarding of honors.

Those at camp this week are Jeri Ann Boylan, Linda Brown, Ann Ducey, Shirley Frey, Judith Grieves, Carolyn McCray, Barbara Mustain, Shirley Rummer, Beatrice Van Zant, Martha Yahn and Barbara Schiller, all of the Odako group, and Mary Ella Dodds.

There are about 12 different species of walnuts, eight or nine of which are cultivated.

Funeral Rites Held For Harry Elliott

Funeral services for Harry Elliott were held at 2 p. m. Tuesday at the Bloomingburg Methodist Church.

Rev. Edwin Swineburn, pastor of the Methodist Church in Mt. Washington, delivered the sermon. Rev. Loren Heacock, pastor of the Bloomingburg Methodist Church, read the Scripture and the 23rd Psalm. He also read the hymn, "Crossing the Bar."

Bloomingburg Presbyterian Rev. John Glenn, pastor of the Bloomingburg Presbyterian Church, offered prayer. Mrs. W. O. Riley read the memoir.

Mrs. Robert Moyer, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Mae Allemand, sang two hymns, "The Old Rugged Cross" and "Sunrise."

There were a great many flowers, which were cared for by Mrs. Glovis Graves, Mrs. Frank Hook, Mrs. Charles Snyder, Miss Ho Larimer, Mrs. Eloise Johnson, Mrs. Howard Foster, Mrs. Alice Cory, Mrs. Willard Bitzer and Mrs. Madison Swope.

The pallbearers were Clark Thompson, Howard Foster, Keith Garringer, Elmer Haymaker, Lloyd Iden and Lawrence Grimm. Burial was in the family lot in the Bloomingburg Cemetery.

There was a large attendance at the services. Those from out-of-town were Mr. and Mrs. Homer Elliott, Detroit; Mrs. Olie Lemons, Middletown; Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Riley and Mr. and Mrs. Marilyn Riley and daughter of Grove Port; Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Grayble, London; Mrs. Harold Foody, Phoenix, Ariz.; Mr. and Mrs. Joel Smouse, Park Ridge, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Barrick and daughters, Salem, Ore.; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Evans and Miss Hilda Brock, Columbus; Mrs. Glenn Wilt and family, Mrs. Mary Shoemaker and Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Shoemaker, Sedalia.

Bids On Sewer Project Being Received Here

Approximately 8,000 Feet of Main Line Included

The city engineer's office is now taking bids on the North End sewer project, Norman Meranda, city engineer, said today, announcing that bidding will be closed at noon July 25.

Work on the project will begin within 10 days after a contract is finally signed, said Meranda. He said that the project will include approximately 8,000 feet of main line, ranging from eight inch pipe to 15 inch. The sewer will be laid along Grace Street, Earl Avenue, Gibbs Avenue, Eastern Avenue, Peabody Avenue and a section on Gregg Street just west of Delaware Street.

Although the city will finance the project originally, said Meranda, after the construction is complete, the cost will be charged to the benefitted property owners on the assessment plan. He said that there have been no written remonstrances against the project so it will go ahead as planned.

The plan was originally set up from a petition of the affected property owners and submitted to the city.

Only One Entrance At Fairgrounds

Fair Board officials once more call attention to the fact that there is only one public entrance to the Fairgrounds, and that is on Fairview Avenue, or at the eastern side of the grounds.

The entrance on Leesburg Avenue is for horsemen only, and those who have business at the barns. Likewise no cars will be permitted to leave the grounds by the Leesburg Avenue exit, except those of horsemen and persons having business there.

The new arrangement at the Fairview Avenue entrance makes it possible to handle vehicles entering and leaving the grounds, with a minimum of delay.

Give It A CHANCE To Help Feel BETTER

You can help your bowels to act properly by making it a habit to move them at regular times every day. If an occasional attack of bowel sluggishness causes headache or temporary minor intestinal distress, give TUXON No. 1 or 2 a chance to remove the waste matter accumulated in the bowels. Then see for yourself how much better you will feel. Caution: Use only as directed. Sold by DOWNTOWN DRUG & GROC.

THE OLD HOME TOWN

John Reser Rites Are Held Tuesday

Largely attended services honoring John Reser, who died Sunday at his home at Selden, were held at the residence, Tuesday at 2 P. M. and were conducted by Rev. A. E. Huntington.

Mrs. Fred Clemens read a memoir which she had prepared. There were many lovely floral tributes.

Interment was made in the Greenfield Cemetery.

The pallbearers were: Clyde Smith, Chester Barnett, M. M. Turner, Harvey Barger, Edwin Reser and Harold Reser.

McAdams Hearing Gets Under Way

The case of Herbert O. McAdams Chillicothe, facing a charge of driving while intoxicated, got under way before Judge R. H. Sites and a jury, in the court room, Wednesday morning, with each side having a number of witnesses to introduce.

Winston W. Hill represents the city and W. A. Lovell represents McAdams.

After the charge was filed McAdams asked a change of venue on the grounds that Judge Sites was prejudiced, but after Judge H. M. Rankin heard the appeal, he remanded the case to Judge Sites' court on the grounds that there was no prejudice.

Then McAdams asked for a jury trial, which is now under way.

Rev. A. W. Caley Talks To Lions Tuesday Night

Moral Rearmament is Needed, Declares Speaker

Moral rearmament is the most important answer to the international confusion and hostility which has developed in recent years, said Rev. Alan W. Caley, pastor of the Grace Methodist Church, as he addressed the Lions Club at a meeting Tuesday night at the Country Club.

Rev. Caley, who was introduced by Don Brandenburg, said that science had developed physical supermen, but a similar rise in moral powers had not come to light. He stated that if people reaffirmed their religion and called on higher forces to guide them, the problems which confront mankind could be answered without arms.

There is much confusion in the world, he said, and the United States' policy toward Russia is in doubt. The solution, he pointed out, lies in the democratic way of life which has attracted other nations for generations.

He admonished the Lions to become well informed and acquainted with world affairs in order to have an active part in the government and help strengthen it.

Preceding Rev. Caley's talk, the members discussed the sale of race programs at the Fair undertaken yearly by the club. Mac Dews and Bill McCoy were appointed co-chairmen of the sale and all the members of the group were assigned days to sell the programs and pencils at the Fair. The Lions' share of the proceeds will go into the Community Welfare Fund and will be used primarily in the vision program.

The group also voted to appropriate funds to buy a Jungle Gym for one of the city playgrounds. The treasurer was authorized to make this appropriation immediately.

A 10 year chevron for continuous service and membership in the Lions Club was presented to Fred Enslin.

The next program will be under the direction of Bill Clarke and Robert Cannon. Brandenburg and Homer Bireley were in charge of the Tuesday meeting.

With the invention of mechanical sheep shears, one man can now clip up to 200 animals daily.
